FLOODS ADD TO HAVOC OF HURRICANE TOLL

FLORIDA STREAMS AND LAKES ARE OUT OF BANKS

OKEECHOBEE CITY REPORTED WATER IN ITS STREETS

BULK OF HIGH WATER DRAINING INTO EVERGLADES OF SOUTH

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 10—(UP)—Cities and towns in the hurricane swept area of the middle Florida fruit belt faced additional loss today from floods.

Streams and lakes in the district were out of their banks.

Okeechobee City, 18 miles north of Lake Okeechobee reported water in the streets and Taylor's creek, normally a 15 feet wide stream, in some places coursing over lowlands a mile wide.

The flood danger was expected to be shortlived. The bulk of the high water was being steadily drained today into the Everglades to the south. Seminoles on the eastern fringe of the great swamp reported new high levels in water courses there.

The town of St. Cloud on Lake Tohopekaliga in Osceola county was in part under water. Lake Kissimmee was swollen.

Roads from Fort Pierce on the east coast into the interior were impassable in some places.

The estimated rainfall during the period of the hurricane was between 6 and 8 inches on the east coast.

Relief measures taken today found residents of the affected districts prone to minimize their needs. Red Cross units returned to Palm Beach to report disaster relief measures unnecesary.

At Fort Pierce, in the area where greatest damage was done, Fire Chief R. E. Mimms said help was not needed.

Farmers and merchants of the hurricane ravaged strip across the peninsula have turned to take stock of losses. Damage to citrus groves looked to be the largest item throughout the belt. Property damage was greatest on the east coast and may run into the millions.

An unconfirmed report of four killed west of Jupiter stood today as the only rumored loss of life in the storm. R. R. Hull, a citrus grower, brought the report to Palm Beach.

Telephone and telegraph lines are rapidly being re-established to all parts of the territory. Debris on highways is being cleared, and railroads resuming normal service. The Seaboard Airline reported 65 washouts in a 15-mile stretch between Indiantown and Sherman on the east coast. Battering seas elsewhere undermined highways.

The huricane, after slashing the state for more than 80 hours, was lost in the upper Gulf of Mexico today, a mere handful of light winds.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 10.—Small communities northwest of here were isolated today as creeks and rivers went out of their banks from the heavy rains of the hurricane which swept the peninsula.

The Loxahatchee river was out of its banks and flooding citrus groves to add to storm damage. Kenansville was reported cut off as highways were flooded.

Washington, Aug. 10.—A tropical disturbance of considerable intensity attended by gales was reported by the weather bureau to be centered about 250 miles southwest of Jamaica and moving west-northwest.

Caution was advised for vessels in the region of Jamaica and south of eastern Cuba in the next 24 hours.

GOV. SMITH TO DEFEND FITNESS FOR OFFICE

WILL ENGAGE IN JOINT DEBATE WITH BAPTIST CLERGYMAN

SMITH CHALLENGED DR. JOHN ROACH STRATON, TO OCCUPY PULPIT

New York, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic candidate for president, will defend his record and fitness for office against one of the country's best-known Baptist clergymen in joint debate in a Protestant church next month, it appeared probable today.

Smith challenged Dr. John Roach Straton, who attacked his record, to debate the issue, and Straton has accepted formally. The clergyman sent his letter of acceptance to the governor last night and Smith will receive it when he returns from the Brennan funeral in Chicago.

Political observers here regarded the debate as unique in American politics. Straton in a sermon had called Smith the country's "deadliest foe of moral strength and true political wisdom." The governor returned a prompt and warm challenge for a debate. The governor asked Straton, in "the spirit of American fair play," to be permitted to answer him in Calvary church, where the sermon was delivered.

In his letter written last night, Straton said:

"I definitely accept your challenge and will certainly meet you, God willing, face to face."

Straton urged Sept. 7 or 8 as the date, which fits with Smith's proposal of the week of Sept. 2.

Straton also referred to the paragraph in the governor's letter to him in which Smith wrote:

"I do not think I should charge you with making this statement for any political purpose, as it was made in a church devoted to the teachings of Christ, one of which was 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor'."

Straton commented:

"As to this, dear governor, the quotation you give was not a part of the teachings of Christ, as you say, but one of the ten commandments revealed to us through Moses."

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT IN FORECAST

FARMING HAS MORE THAN RECOVERED FROM EARLY SEASON SLUMP

CROP YIELDS MAY BE 4 PER CENT LARGER AN ACRE THAN FOR ANY RECENT YEARS

Washington, Aug. 10.—(UP) — The United States will harvest bountiful crops this year unless unforeseen adverse conditions develop in farming regions, the agriculture department said today.

Government reports show agriculture has more than recovered from an early season slump and indications are for crop yields about four per cent larger per acre than for any recent year.

While some sections reported a few crops below average, officials said there would be no shortages of farm produce in 1928.

Winter wheat made the most remarkable recovery of all crops after an adverse start. The estimated production of spring and winter wheat was placed at 891,000,000 bushels, compared with 873,000,000 bushels harvested last year.

A bumper corn crop, nine per cent greater than last year, is in sight. The official estimate is 3,030,000,000 bushels.

Corn prospects are unusually favorable in the north central states, especially Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. North Dakota is the only state in that section with the crop below the 10-year average condition.

Oats, rye and barley improved greatly during July. Buckwheat condition was slightly under that of a year ago while rice declined one point during the month.

Potatoes shared generally in the improved growing conditions. Increased production of white potatoes was forecast for all sections except northeastern states, where a heavy loss from blight was reported.

The industrial magnate thus joins his business associate, Chairman John J. Rakob of the democratic national committee, in the campaign for the New York governor. BRENNAN REQUESTED FUNERAL RITES BE SIMPLE ONES

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(UP)—The request of George E. Brennan that his funeral services be simple and without display seemed to have been set aside by his many friends in their efforts to pay a last tribute to the great democratic leader.

The announcement by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York that he would attend the funeral helped to eliminate the last shred of privacy which had been planned.

The insistence of friends also caused a change in time of the ceremonies, originally planned to begin at 10 a. m. When it was learned that Governor Smith would not arrive until 10:45 the rites were postponed one hour.

A special committee of Brennan's former associates in the Illinois democratic party were to meet Governor Smith and his party. The governor and his group will follow the family to the church but will be unable to attend the burial at All Saint's cemetery at Des Plaines.

Church rites will be held from our Lady of Mt. Carmel church, a few blocks from the Brennan home.

The city hall was closed by action of the city council and the entire city was expected to pause for a momentary silent tribute to the veteran democratic leader.

BRENNAN REQUESTED FUNERAL RITES BE SIMPLE ONES

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—The request of George E. Brennan that his funeral services be simple and without display seemed to have been set aside by his many friends in their efforts to pay a last tribute to the great democratic leader.

The announcement by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York that he would attend the funeral helped to eliminate the last shred of privacy which had been planned.

The insistence of friends also caused a change in time of the ceremonies, originally planned to begin at 10 a. m. When it was learned that Governor Smith would not arrive until 10:45 the rites were postponed one hour.

A special committee of Brennan's former associates in the Illinois democratic party were to meet Governor Smith and his party. The governor and his group will follow the family to the church but will be unable to attend the burial at All Saint's cemetery at Des Plaines.

Church rites will be held from our Lady of Mt. Carmel church, a few blocks from the Brennan home.

The city hall was closed by action of the city council and the entire city was expected to pause for a momentary silent tribute to the veteran democratic leader.

GRAIN STANDARDS DIVISION RESCINDS ORDERS ON WHEAT

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 10.—(UP)—The grain standards division of the federal department of agriculture at a hearing here rescinded its order which classified bleached dark winter wheat as yellow hard wheat, an inferior grade.

The order will mean a saving to the wheat grower of from 5 to 10 cents a bushel. With 30 per cent of the Kansas wheat crop alone affected by bleach, Kansas farmers will save hundreds of thousands of dollars.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

August 10, 1903

Mrs. A. Dinan and children left this afternoon for Newton, Kans., where she will join her husband, who has taken a position as master mechanic with the Santa Fe at that place. Mrs. Dinan made many friends during her short residence in this city who regretted her departure.

Had it not been for prompt action of the fire department of Cass Lake, a fire which broke out in the frame building on Second street north next to the First National bank, would have undoubtedly spread to the adjoining buildings. The frame building was badly damaged and the contents consisting of household furniture was completely destroyed. The building was the property of the bank and was valued at $500, with $300 insurance. The occupant of the building, Dan Hanegan, carried $300 insurance on his goods.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Nevers, Miss Vera Nevers and W. E. Seelye returned last night from an eastern trip and report having a most delightful time.

Manager Pat Boyle is arranging for a ball game to be played in this city Sunday between Aitkin and the locals. The game Sunday was rather unsatisfactory from the fact that it rained so hard, but during the three innings that it didn't rain the spectators are said to have seen some pretty hot work on the diamond.

Insurance Company President Faces Hearing

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10. — (AP)— Roy C. Toombs, president of the International Life Insurance Company, faced a hearing before insurance commissioners of eight states here today to account for $3,500,000 missing assets of the company.

Meanwhile, a petition for receivership for the company was on file in federal district court, with a demand for an injunction to prevent reorganization of the company. The petition maintains the company is solvent.

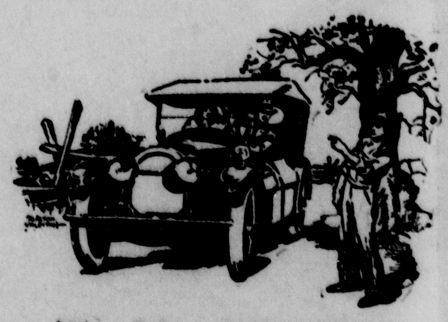

Charles R. Detrick, insurance commissioner of California, whose preliminary investigation led to the reported absence of company assets, announced Toombs had severed his connections with the company. Detrick intiamted the report of the commissioners may include a recommendation for criminal prosecution, on grounds of alleged conversion of company assets to Toombs own use.

Toombs has denied inability to account for the assets.

The frame building was badly damaged and the contents consisting of household furniture was completely destroyed. The building was the property of the bank and was valued at $500, with $300 insurance. The occupant of the building, Dan Hanegan, carried $300 insurance on his goods.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Nevers, Miss Vera Nevers and W. E. Seelye returned last night from an eastern trip and report having a most delightful time.

Manager Pat Boyle is arranging for a ball game to be played in this city Sunday between Aitkin and the locals. The game Sunday was rather unsatisfactory from the fact that it rained so hard, but during the three innings that it didn't rain the spectators are said to have seen some pretty hot work on the diamond.

Insurance Company President Faces Hearing

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10. — (AP)— Roy C. Toombs, president of the International Life Insurance Company, faced a hearing before insurance commissioners of eight states here today to account for $3,500,000 missing assets of the company.

Meanwhile, a petition for receivership for the company was on file in federal district court, with a demand for an injunction to prevent reorganization of the company. The petition maintains the company is solvent.

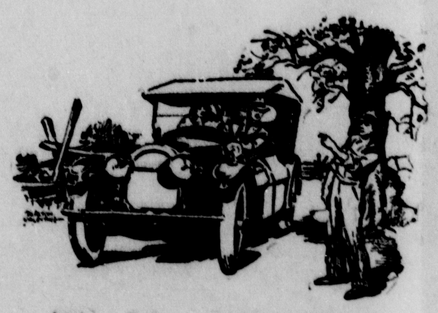

Charles R. Detrick, insurance commissioner of California, whose preliminary investigation led to the reported absence of company assets, announced Toombs had severed his connections with the company. Detrick intiamted the report of the commissioners may include a recommendation for criminal prosecution, on grounds of alleged conversion of company assets to Toombs own use.

Toombs has denied inability to account for the assets.

Old Celluloid Collars

A patent for celluloid collars was issued in 1878. The material used was composed of a celluloid composition, cemented to a piece of cotton cloth, the cloth being placed between the two veneers of the thin composition sheets. In 1879, the manufacture began of the celluloid collar made of solid stock, approximately twenty thousandths of an inch thick.

Card-Playing Expression

The expression "the game's not worth the candle" arose when candles were expensive and card-playing for money was prevalent. Small stakes meant that the illumination came to more than possible winnings.

Salesmen and Dealers of Six Counties to Gather for District Sales Meeting

PROMINENT OFFICIALS COMING

Banquet Scheduled at 7 P. M. at Ransford Hotel Followed by Musical Program

The Maytag salesmen and dealers of Isanti, Kenebec, Mille Lacs, Morrison, Todd, Crow Wing counties under the management of C. A. Stadlbauer will hold a district sales meeting at the Hotel Ransford August 16.

A banquet will be held at 7 p. m. Many Maytag officials will be present including Walter Bones, manager Minneapolis branch; M. C. Prands, divisional manager; J. J. Ryan of Grand Forks, superviser, who will deliver short talks.

A musical program will be a feature and motion pictures will be shown of the factory and its recent convention where Mr. Stadlbauer had his salesmen July 28, 29. Pictures were taken of the men in action at that time.

The Dakota division of the Maytag Co. of which Brainerd is a part, recently won the new Eastman moving picture camera having sold over 8,700 Maytags out of Minneapolis branch in six months.

There were over 30,000 Maytags sold out of the Minneapolis branch in a period of six months, by the five divisions which constitutes the Minneapolis branch.

The Maytag factory is at the present time manufacturing and selling over 1,200 machines per day. These machines are manufactured and delivered into box cars and shipped to th various branches in the United States—their output ranking first in the wash machine industry and putting out and selling more wash machines than their three nearest competitors combined.

Sand Pictures in Bottles

Forming pictures and designs of colored sands on the interiors of bottles is the interesting art hobby of a California man who got the idea from a natural group of "painted rocks." The grains are carefully arranged with special instruments to achieve the effect and the bottles are packed full and sealed so that the sand will not become loose and spoil the pattern. Fifty six shades, all of natural colors and of samples sent to the artist from different parts of the world, are employed in making the designs.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Better Conduct

Better conduct should be the first ideal of every man and woman; it is the most important aid in living. This is true not because better conduct is recommended by religion, but because it is recommended by Nature. A man who behaves better in his feeding is rewarded; so is the man who behaves better in associating with his fellows, in his business, in his family affairs. Behave better is the one maxim that all should accept as the greatest in the world.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Valuable Hardwood

Birch is Canada's most important hardwood. Of the seven Canadian species, the yellow birch (Betula lutea) and the paper birch (Betula alba or papritera) are the best known. The former is used for flooring, furniture, cabinet work, and vehicle stock, while the tough, resinous bark of the latter has supplied the aborigines for centuries with the material for covering their famous birch-bark canoes.

Concentrated Food

Pemmican is a compressed food, made from dried beef, fat, sugar, and dried currants. It is used extensively by Arctic explorers.

LOGGING DAYS

By W. F. SMART

Note — Republished from article published some years ago in the Tribune. Send reminiscences to S. R. Adair, president or L. B. Kinder, historian, Crow Wing Historical society.

Lumbering in Minnesota began with the first settlement of the state. Eastern capitalists early became interested in the timber country around the upper Mississippi. As a matter of fact, it was the pine tree and the fur trade that first brought the white man into the country.

Sees Unlimited Pine

In 1847 they sent Daniel Stanchfield from St. Anthony Falls to discover whether pine existed in paying quantities. He proceeded up the valley of Rum River and following the west branch inspected the tracts of fine white pine, then standing adjacent to its banks. He climbed the tallest tree he could find and still saw timber stretching away to the northward toward Mille Lacs. He tramped back to St. Anthony (now Minneapolis) and reported to Franklin Steele in characteristic Mainite fashion that, "He had seen more pine than 70 mills could cut in 70 years."

The 70 years have come and gone, 70 times seven mills have been put up and sung their way through the logs, until the original forests have all but vanished.

First Drive Starts

The first record that I find of logging on the Upper Mississippi was in the fall of 1847, when Henry M. Rice, who was engaged in trading with the Indians, entered into an agreement with Hole-in-the-Day, who had his camp at the mouth of the Crow Wing River, to cut some of his pine trees, paying the chief 50 cents per tree. In due time the logs were cut and in the spring if 1884 the first drive started down river toward the booms at St. Anthony. From that day until the late nineties the annual cut augmented from year to year.

As children we sat on the bank many a summer's day and watched the logs float placidly by. When the wanigun came sailing around the bend and the driving crew hove in sight with the clinking and clanking of the peavies as they backed off the sand-bar, that was a day indeed. Sometimes a jam formed even in the river. We saw at times the stream running full, not merely the surface covered but the bed plumb to the bottom filled for miles with a heaving up-ending mass of timbers moving forward with resistless force, clearing the channel of all obstructions and rearing them up along the shore. Such a jam must contain millions upon millions of feet of lumber.

Remember the old river steamer which used to ply between Aitkin and Grand Rapids before the railroad came across to the Rapids from N. P. Junction (now Carlton)? "No?" You ought to have been aboard on a brown October day, the boat chugging her way, against the current, around the picturesque bends, dodging the overhanging sweepers on the banks, with three hundred men on board, headed for Deer River and Bear River, going up for "Old Hayward" or "Cooper and Gray," for some of those St. Cloud loggers, and with a few exceptions, every man-jack of them three sheets to the wind—or better—and Jack Jenkins, a raw-boned, flat-nosed, six-footer, a true son of the Maine forest, squaring off and announcing to the world: "I'm right from the Penobscot Rivah by the Jehovah! The farthah up the crick you go the tuffah they git, and I'm right from the head of 'Ah by the Lud Great Jehovah!" To the youngster of sixteen on his first trip up into the pineries it was a journey long to be remembered.

Favorite Terms

Sometime before the original actors are all off the stage someone ought to "take his pen in hand" and preserve for posterity the habits and vernacular of the lumber camp, such terms as parbuckle, swamper, swamphook, sway-bar, fid-hook, cross-haul, corner-bind, wanigun and many others will become obsolete and forgotten unless given permanence in fiction or biography.

Even our common word, sled, to the future generations will hardly apply to those ponderous structures, weighing perhaps two tons in themselves, on which we used to deck up anywhere from five to fifteen thousand feet of green logs, weighing enough to well-nigh crush down a freight car.

The record load of McGee Bros., during the time that I was connected with the outfit, was 16,440 ft. We used a block and pulley to start the load but four horses carried it six miles to the landing.

This was in the latter part of February, 1898, at the foot of Straught lake in Eastern Becker county. The photographer came out from Park Rapids that morning and got some good views. Probably some of you are familiar with the picture as it hung just inside my office door at the Court House during the years that I was auditor there.

Big Sled-loads

Bigger loads were afterwards hauled but I call this a pretty fair jag. We used a nine foot roll that winter and a sixteen foot rocker and this load stood aloft about 18 feet.

When the M. & I. was hauling logs to the dump at Rice Lake for the Brainerd Lumber Company, they used to put two brills to the car, of about two or three thousand feet to the brill (if I remember correctly). At that rate our sled-load would fill about three flats.

Stewart Edward White has done a good work toward giving the lumber jack a permanent place in literature in his two books, "The Blazed Trail" and "The Riverman," the one dealing with the winter camp and the other with the spring drive. His father was a logger operating out of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and he often used to take the boy with him on his long drives into the woods.

Whatever else your old-time lumber jack may have been, you rarely found him petty and sordid. He was accustomed to seeing things done in a big way. He lived in daily presence of powerful forces which in some cases he had to tame and harness to serve his purposes. He had to be sure-footed and keen-eyed for often a misstep meant disaster.

And so I leave this thought with you that some logger operating out of your own Brainerd may some day put forward some one with an inspiration to write the epic of the lumberjack in our territory, not forgetting Paul Bunion.

THE DRUDGERY OF BUSINESS

MERLE THORPE in "The Nation's Business" speaks of the drudgery of business. It may be drudgery to some people, but nevertheless, as argued by Thorpe, it's saturated with romance, poetry, etc.

"A man of wit is not incapable of business, but above it," sang Alexander Pope, adding that an adventurous spirit was too good to be put to "this drudgery."

Two centuries have passed and the Popes of today make the same indictment. They, too, are misled by the sensitive concern of business men to appear matter-of-fact. We take pains to conceal sentiment behind a mask of materialism. We are shamefaced about the joy of our tremendous job of making the world more comfortable.

Romance in business? Huh! we reply, business is business. Adventure in factory layouts? Poetry in a production schedule? Fascination in a sales quota? Mystery in a balance sheet? Chivalry in buying and selling? Heroics in per cents? Ridiculous!

Yet, underneath the hard-boiled exterior, the successful business man recognizes and enjoys the stirring adventure of which he is a part. For in every stride toward a higher civilization are the romantic figures of resourceful men, who, like great poets, have kept their hands on the present and their eyes on the future.

Roaring cataracts put to the making of light and power. Mountains pierced to give speeding trains right of way. Plant food plucked from the air. The sky made highways of commerce. Nations joined by an eager spark leaping across the ocean. Domestic drudgery assumed by laundry, bakery and factory. Ice by wire, "lumber" from sugar cane, silk from wood. An automaton, handing out merchandise with a "thank you!" at the drop of a coin.

Of such is the true essence of romance.

The quality of poetry is in all fine projects, big or little. "Why, that man Harriman," exclaimed a discerning European, "supposed to be so hard-boiled, that man is a great poet! Only, he rhymes in rails!"

Whether the rhyming be with rails, with ships, with sealing wax, with groceries, with dry goods, or what not, the feeling of great poetry is in all honest work, is in all business that has sincerity and depth of purpose.

The spirit of romance still finds expression in the work-a-day world, and no poetic soul is above the "drudgery of business."

Business has its adventurers no less renowned than the trail blazers and pathfinders of frontier days.

Arcady today is in forge and farm and mine and bench and counter.

This drudgery of business! Drudgery of body or mind? Wrong, on both counts. Business is making the very word drudgery archaic.

The case might rest on the abolition of drudgery. That in itself is an adventure too noble to be compressed within Pope's narrow measure. Its meter is scaled to the magnitude of nature, to the wistful wants of a whole world.

ANOTHER BIG CROP MOVEMENT

WE, of Brainerd and vicinity, have an idea that the only big crop movement of the Northern Pacific is wheat, and the other big freight staple is coal. There are other sources bulking large in mass transportation. Movement of the largest crop of fruits ever grown in the territory on or reached by the railway began this week when solid trainloads of fruits moved away from the producing areas.

The fruit is grown principally in Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and western Montana, and L. R. Capron, freight traffic manager of the Northern Pasific, said last night that approximately 30,000 carloads of fruit will be produced in the Yakima Valley of Washington alone.

The estimate is that 45,000 cars will be required this year to move the fruits, vegetables, berries, cherries, and melons. The movement of berries and cherries is about completed. Peaches, pears, plums, and apricots now are being shipped to market. The apple crop which will be unusually heavy this year will begin to move later.

Thousands of refrigerator cars will be required to move this tonnage. The cars move in trains from the Twin Cities to the producing sections and after they are loaded most of them are taken in trainloads on fast schedules, distributed ultimately all over the nation. Great numbers of them are handled through the Twin City terminal. The trains over the Northern Pacific are assembled at Pasco, Wash., from the lines tapping the producing sections.

Elberta peaches and Bartlett pears, for the production of which the Yakima Valley is noted and which are in great demand all over the country, now are being loaded and shipped in solid carloads.

The fresh Italian prune crop produced in the Walla Walla Valley of Washington and Oregon soon will begin to move east, and it is estimated that there will be 1,500 carloads of this fruit alone, according to George R. Merritt, general agent refrigerator service of the Northern Pacific.

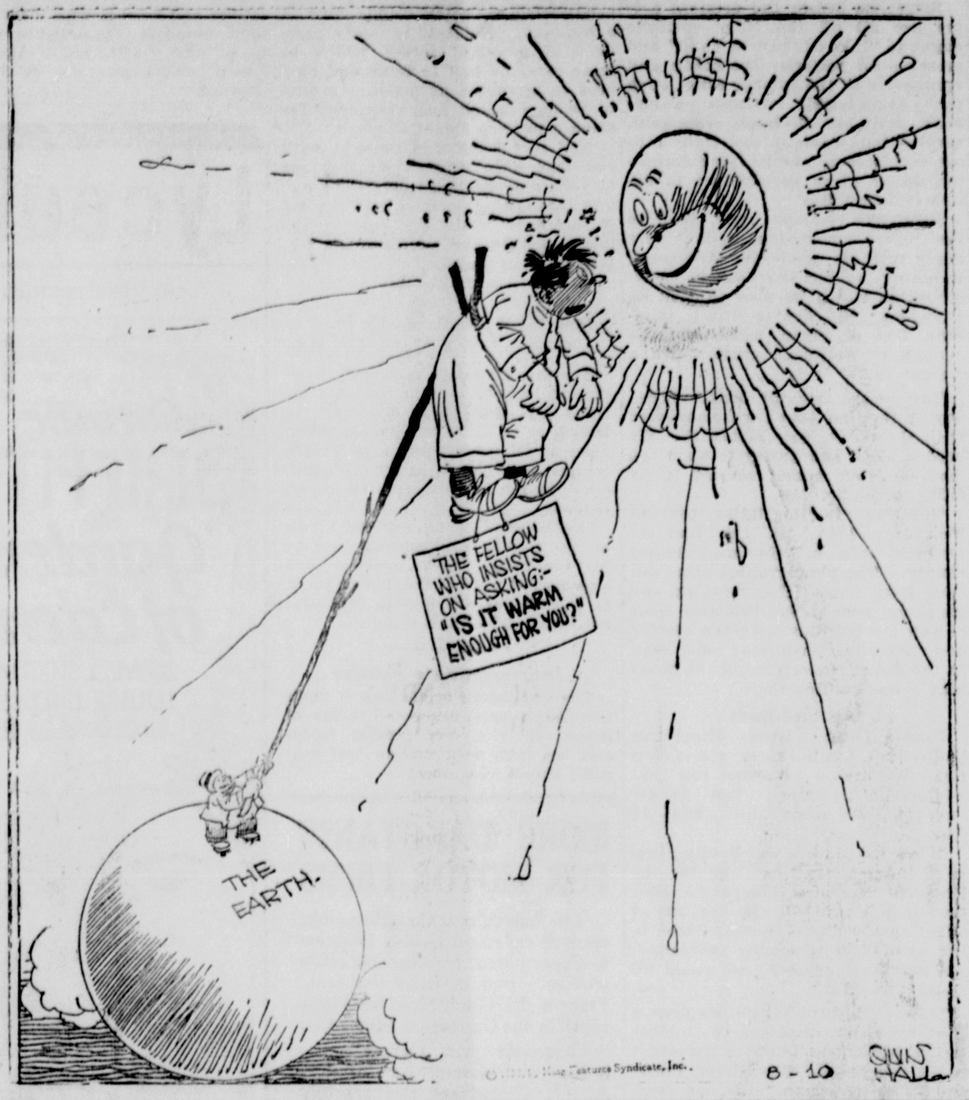

"Practically all fruit produced in the Yakima Valley," Mr. Merritt said, "is taken direct from the orchard to the cold storage plant where it is held for 24 hours or more in rooms at a temperature of 34 degrees. The field heat thus is removed before packing and loading into cars. This method of handling maintains the quality. Fruit cooled in this manner before shipped will keep twice as long as under the old method of loading hot fruit from the orchard into the car."

The potato and vegetable crop this year also will be unusually heavy.

IN magazine articles which will appear shortly, the Land of the 10,000 Lakes will be described in Java as a great summer playground. D. W. Jolly of Batavia, Java, who visited Minnesota last year, will write the stories and they will be illustrated by photographs furnished by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association.

IN Louisiana the law forbids women to wear men's clothing. However in most other places it seems to be approaching the time when women will be wearing either pants or nothing, so mebbe we better let them wear pants.—Remer Record.

INTEREST IN HEAVYWEIGHT ELIMINATION IS HEIGHTENED

TEX RICKARD TO HAVE 75 ON HAND FOR TRIAL SEPT. 1

43 HEAVYWEIGHTS ALREADY FILED APPLICATION FOR PLACES IN TOURNEY

THESE, SAYS PROMOTER, HAVE BEEN DIVIDED INTO THREE CLASSES

New York, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Interest in the elimination tournament on which it is hoped a worthy successor to Gene Tunney may emerge, was heightened today after the announcement by Tex Rickard that 75 "first class" heavyweights would be on hand for trial Sept. 1.

Forty-three heavyweights already have filed written applications for places in the tournament, Rickard said. A railroad ticket would bring enough heavyweights to Madison Square Garden to "stage a regimental parade," the promoter declared.

The forty-three applicants have been divided into three classes, Rickard said. Sixteen belong in the first class, 22 in the second and the remainder are in class three.

The first 16 include Sharkey, Risko, Heeney, Paolino, Hansen, Scott, Young Stribling, Roberti, Bertozollo, the Italian; Von Porat, Chicago; Pierre Charles, Belgium; Dorval, Jack Gross, Arthur DeKuh and Joe Sekyra.

Jimmy Johnston, 10 per cent manager of Sharkey, offered the suggestion that Sharkey and Risko be matched in September, the winner to meet the winner of the elimination. This, in Johnston's opinion, would keep all the heavyweights from eliminating themselves as was the case in last year's tournament.

I. O. O. F. DROPS N. E. BRAINERD 2-1

GRANT PITCHES GOOD GAME, ALLOWING ONLY FOUR HITS; GAME HALTED IN 5TH

I. O. O. F. defeated Northeast Brainerd in a city league baseball game at municipal field last night by a score of 2 to 1. Although I. O. O. F. had one more error to its credit than did Northeast the Oddfellows made every break count and were leading by one run when the contest was halted at the end of the fifth inning on account of darkness.

Fitzharris scored the first I. O. O. F. run in the opening round and the second I. O. O. F. run came in the third when Fogelstrom crossed the plate. U. OF CALIFORNIA DEFEATS BRITISH THAMES CLUB

CALIFORNIA WINS BY THREE QUARTERS OF LENGTH AT SLOTEN, HOLLAND

UNITED STATES IS ALSO VICTORIOUS IN THE DOUBLE SCULLS

Sloten, Holland, Aug. 10.—(UP)—America, represented by the University of California, today won the eight-oared shell race classic of Olympic rowing, from Great Britain's Thames Rowing club.

California won by three-quarters of a length in six minutes, 3.2 seconds.

England's time in the eight-oared shell race was 6 minutes, 5.6 seconds—3.2 seconds behind.

The United States was victorious also in the double sculls, where Chas. McIlvane and Paul Costello of the Penn A. C., defeated Joe Wright and Jack Guest of Canada, but suffered defeat in the single sculls. There Bobby Pearce of Australia, said by many to be the greatest oarsman ever produced, defeated Kenneth Myers, Philadelphia fireman.

In the four-oared shells without coxswain, the United States crew from Penn Barge club lost to the "First Trinity four of Cambridge University," Great Britain.

Thus America and the British Empire broke even in four of the day's finals in which they were contestants.

Amsterdam, Aug. 10.—Although he has had six exhausting races in the past few days, Albert Zorilla, the rich young Argentine conqueror of Arne Borg, world's record holder for the 400 metres swim, appeared at 9:30 A. M. today and began practicing in the pool.

He was not scheduled to race until 10:40 A. M.

Several coaches expressed surprise that Zorilla was competing today after yesterday's severe contest with Borg.

20 B. C. C. GOLFERS PLAY LITTLE FALLS IN 18 HOLE MATCH

ENGAGEMENT SCHEDULED TO START AT DOWN RIVER COURSE AT 2 P. M. TOMORROW

INTEREST IN LOCAL ANNUAL CLUB TOURNAMENT REACHES HEIGHT OF ANTICIPATION

Approximately twenty golfers from the Brainerd Country club will go to Little Falls tomorrow to engage in an eighteen hole match with the Country club of that city. The play will begin at two in the afternoon. The qualifying rounds of the local cup tournament close at noon Sunday so that every player will have a chance to get to Little Falls. It is anticipated that there will be a close match as the down river city has many excelent golfers who will also be on their own course. The Brainerd players are anxious to make up for the defeat they suffered recently at the hands of the Cuyuna Range club who trimmed them on their home links—something that has not happened to Brainerd heretofore.

The annual club tournament promises to have a larger entry list this year than ever before. The group of silver cups offered this year is a big attraction. Many golfers who have heretofore had no chance at the club cup are entering this year because they will shoot for a cup in their flight with golfers of their own class. Many boasts have been heard on the links and about the city as to what will happen during the tournament, and many portly and grey-haired gentlemen have already picked out their cup. Needless to say there will be the usual flock of disappointments. The greens are being given a thorough going over in preparation for the qualifying rounds tomorrow and will be in excellent condition.

OTTO VON PORAT DEFEATS CRACK BELGIAN FIGHTER

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—Otto Von Porat, Norwegian slugger, moved a notch higher in Promoter Jim Mullen's heavyweight elimination program here last night by winning a ten round decision from the crack Belgian fighter, Pierre Charles.

Charles entered the ring with a 17 pound advantage and a greater reputation for ring generalship over Von Porat. He had bested the veteran, Chuck Wiggins. Von Porat staged the best fight of his career, however, and walked away with a shade advantage.

Von Porat stretched the Belgian threat on the canvas for a count of eight in the second round. The fight was fast and close.

That Socking Lightweight!

By QUIN HALL.

UNLESS "Baby-Face" McLarnin falls down and breaks both of his wings he will undoubtedly be Sammy Mandell's next opponent when the Rockaway Sheik again takes up his mittens in a serious way and goes to the wars.

It is quite true that Jimmy has already met the boss of the lightweights, but it is also hard to realize how they're going to groom up another contender who will be able to get by the powerful socking of the youngster who came out of the West. It is quite true that Mandell outsmarted the Baby Face at their first meeting, but Jimmy is gaining more experience every time he crawls through the ropes, and they are keeping him fairly busy at his trade of solid socking. Probably this regular work will teach young McLarnin a lot about this smart stuff, and the next time he meets the champion the Sheik may find it a mor difficult task to keep out of Jimmy's way.

This is one youngster who packs a tremendous wallop, and he carries it in both hands. During his early appearance in the East it was figured that the Irish rattlesnake had dynamite only in his right paw, but during his short session with Phil McGraw the Greek florist from Detroit, in a New York ring, Jimmy unloosened his left and it was also found to be brimful of the ol' TNT.

What a sweet socker this boy is! Take that McGraw setto, for instance. Phil has stood up for a number of years under the best punches of the hardest hitters of the division without being stopped. McLarnin cooled him off in two minutes and forty-five seconds of battling. Four times in that brief space McGraw was sent to the resined canvas—the first time being walloped so hard that it was plainly evident that the Detroit dispenser of daisies was so groggy that he didn't know what it was all about. Fighting instinct—that alone—brought him staggering back to his feet to be smacked down again and again. The third clout sent him sprawling almost through the ropes, but a strong heart brought him back from that trip for another sock before the bout was finally stopped.

Only a short time before that in the same Madison Square Garden ring, Sid Terris, the Gallopping Ghost of New York's East Side Ghetto, and no mean scrapper in his own right, lasted but 73 seconds against the Irishman's punching power.

Here's a lad with everything. Even more than is alloted to most youngsters who are trying for fame in the squared circle because Jimmy totes dynamite in both fists and in these days of cream puff fighting it is exceptional to find a fighter with such an assortment—especially in the ranks of the lighter weight boxers.

It has been said of McLarnin—and truthfully—that he can crash down any opponent whom he can hit. Mandell, a master boxer, eluded the whirlwind at their first meeting. A smart boy, Sammy wouldn't give McLarnin a shot at him.

But sooner or later Mandell will be called on to meet the baby-faced one once again. It's inevitable. That is if Sammy expects to again defend his tin derby.

What of this next meeting? Will Sammy again outsmart him or will McLarnin, having gained extra experience, sock the smartness out of the king?

It will be a tilt well worthy of a packed house.

INTEREST IN HEAVYWEIGHT ELIMINATION IS HEIGHTENED

43 HEAVYWEIGHTS ALREADY FILED APPLICATION FOR PLACES IN TOURNEY

THESE, SAYS PROMOTER, HAVE BEEN DIVIDED INTO THREE CLASSES

New York, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Interest in the elimination tournament on which it is hoped a worthy successor to Gene Tunney may emerge, was heightened today after the announcement by Tex Rickard that 75 "first class" heavyweights would be on hand for trial Sept. 1.

Forty-three heavyweights already have filed written applications for places in the tournament, Rickard said. A railroad ticket would bring enough heavyweights to Madison Square Garden to "stage a regimental parade," the promoter declared.

The forty-three applicants have been divided into three classes, Rickard said. Sixteen belong in the first class, 22 in the second and the remainder are in class three.

The first 16 include Sharkey, Risko, Heeney, Paolino, Hansen, Scott, Young Stribling, Roberti, Bertozollo, the Italian; Von Porat, Chicago; Pierre Charles, Belgium; Dorval, Jack Gross, Arthur DeKuh and Joe Sekyra.

Jimmy Johnston, 10 per cent manager of Sharkey, offered the suggestion that Sharkey and Risko be matched in September, the winner to meet the winner of the elimination. This, in Johnston's opinion, would keep all the heavyweights from eliminating themselves as was the case in last year's tournament.

SINCLAIR LEWIS' "ELMER GANTRY" IS NOW A PLAY

DISCHARGED PRESS AGENT GIVES IT AN EXTRA SHOCK LAST NIGHT

CRITICS DECLARE IT A SORT OF A ROUGH HOUSE FOR SUCH A PRODUCTION

New York, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Sinclair Lewis' much-discused novel, "Elmer Gantry" turned into a play last night.

It was presented by William A. Brady and a few associates at the Playhouse and, regardless of what the first nighters thought of the play, they got their money's worth of excitement.

At the opening of the second act Sharon Falconer (Adele Klaer) stood alone on the stage as the curtain went up, exhorting the audience to accept religion. She was the woman evangelist around which much of the story evolves.

Actors planted in the audience began to yield to her exhortations. One by one they sauntered to the mourners' bench, up the sawdust trail.

At last Elmer Gantry (Edward Pawley) succumbed to the silver tongued exhorter. He went to the stage and launched into a confession of his sins. That far the play was all going according to the lines which had been written.

But just then a well dressed individual, with straw hat in hand, arose and walked briskly to the stage. Sharon Falconer couldn't quite figure him out and Elmer Gantry gave him a dirty look.

Then they recognized Robert Edgar Long, press agent for the show, who had been fired that morning.

Long threw himself at Sharon Falconer's feet.

"Save me, save me," he pleaded, "save me from William A. Brady."

Then he dashed into the wings of the stage and last seen was fleeing to the fastnesses of Central Park.

The applause from the audience shook the house and the actors, themselves, were somewhat shaken.

As to the play itself, critics were inclined to be harsh. They thought it pretty much of a rough house for a production supposed to tell the story of a minister and a woman evangelist whose lives were not quite what they should have been.

Do You Buy Advertised Goods?

Of course you do; everybody does. Just run over in your mind the various articles that you have purchased in the last week or the last month. How about foods? Your breakfast fruits, cereals and bacon are all advertised. Probably that is how you first came to know of them—through advertising. Probably the shoes you are wearing, or the dress or suit you have on are equally well-known advertised makes, and you are proud of them.

In the home. On the floor are rugs and linoleum—the better wearing kinds are extensively advertised. What about the kitchen? Aluminum ware, gas ranges, hot water heaters, dish and clothes washers, cooking utensils of all kinds—practically everything you use is advertised. You buy advertised products because you have confidence in them. You know that a manufacturer cannot afford to advertise shoddy or unworthy merchandise.

SINCLAIR LEWIS' "ELMER GANTRY" IS NOW A PLAY

DISCHARGED PRESS AGENT GIVES IT AN EXTRA SHOCK LAST NIGHT

CRITICS DECLARE IT A SORT OF A ROUGH HOUSE FOR SUCH A PRODUCTION

New York, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Sinclair Lewis' much-discused novel, "Elmer Gantry" turned into a play last night.

It was presented by William A. Brady and a few associates at the Playhouse and, regardless of what the first nighters thought of the play, they got their money's worth of excitement.

At the opening of the second act Sharon Falconer (Adele Klaer) stood alone on the stage as the curtain went up, exhorting the audience to accept religion. She was the woman evangelist around which much of the story evolves.

Actors planted in the audience began to yield to her exhortations. One by one they sauntered to the mourners' bench, up the sawdust trail.

At last Elmer Gantry (Edward Pawley) succumbed to the silver tongued exhorter. He went to the stage and launched into a confession of his sins. That far the play was all going according to the lines which had been written.

But just then a well dressed individual, with straw hat in hand, arose and walked briskly to the stage. Sharon Falconer couldn't quite figure him out and Elmer Gantry gave him a dirty look.

Then they recognized Robert Edgar Long, press agent for the show, who had been fired that morning.

Long threw himself at Sharon Falconer's feet.

"Save me, save me," he pleaded, "save me from William A. Brady."

Then he dashed into the wings of the stage and last seen was fleeing to the fastnesses of Central Park.

The applause from the audience shook the house and the actors, themselves, were somewhat shaken.

As to the play itself, critics were inclined to be harsh. They thought it pretty much of a rough house for a production supposed to tell the story of a minister and a woman evangelist whose lives were not quite what they should have been.

PRE-EXHIBITION HINTS ON "GLADS"

Exhibitors Urged to Take Particular Care of Blooms in Cutting and Preparing

FLOWER SHOW AUGUST 22, 23

Different Treatments Suggested in Bringing Out Best Blooms Before Showing

Care and preparation of flowers for exhibition are important factors with the exhibitor who desires to enter the flower in its very best condition.

With the Crow Wing County Garden and Flower society annual show scheduled for August 22, 23, at the court house, it would be well for the exhibitors to follow a few hints outlined as to the proper cutting and care of gladiolus before exhibiting.

Gladiolus may be held for exhibition in preparation as long as two weeks. To keep blooms for a period as long as this, pick the spikes early in the morning as the first blossom is opening, place them in water for a few hours then tie the spikes together and hang them upside down in a refrigerator room where the temperature is kept constantly at 35 degrees. These flowers will remain dormant for a couple of weeks. The day before the show take them down, cut the stems and put them in ice water in the refrigerator for a couple of hours, after which bring them into a room temperature of about 60 degrees for a few more hours. By this time the flowers will have opened up nicely and are ready for the show rooms. There are a few varieties which do not take kindly to this treatment but most kinds however respond readily.

In keeping blooms four days to one week before the show, cut early in the morning as the first blossom opens. Place in pail of water and keep in a refrigerator 35 to 40 degrees.

In cutting blooms four days before the show cut blossoms same as before, keeping them in ice water in a dark cellar.

In keeping blooms two days before the show, keep in a sunny room with blossoms in direct sunlight. Always cut spikes as the first blossom opens early in the morning when there is plenty of water in the stems.

Blooms will keep much better when cut on a slanting angle and it is advisable to place the stems in water immediately after cutting.

By the above methods the individual who has only a few dozen blooms has as much opportunity to win prizes as the one with thousands.

During blooming season do not cultivate deeply. Just scratch surface to form a fine mulch. Do not neglect water at this time. This is very important to produce exhibition blooms. In cutting "Glads" for exhibition they should be cut as long as possible and still leave the requisite four leaves in the plant for its proper nourishment and development of the new bulb. Length of stem is one of the requirements for a good exhibition spike. Cut the stems 24 inches long, measuring from the bottom floroet but be sure to leave four leaves. Have as many blooms open at the time of judging as possible. The judges cannot allow for unopened buds or faded blooms. They must judge on what there is at the time not how the flower may have looked yesterday or may look tomorrow.

DIRECTOR URGES CAUTION

Swimmers Should Not Enter Water in Overheated Condition, Earl Berg Advises

Earl R. Berg, water safety director, today advised all swimmers to be careful while swimming during the hot days as it is very possible to take a cramp since the body temperature is higher than the water temperature during hot days.

Six drownings occurred throughout the northwest yesterday and every effort is being put forth here to escape the season without one death by drowning.

Mr. Berg makes the suggestion that no swimmer should enter the water in an overheated condition.

HEAR RESTRAINT OF GATEWAY INN

Order Restrains Use of Premises for Maintenance of Nuisance

NOT ORDERED PADLOCKED

Fred Ledoux Sentenced to St. Cloud for Theft of Car

The hearing on the abatement proceedings for the closing of the Gateway Inn as against George F. Schmelz, Alma Schmelz and Lewis J. Van Fossen was held before Judge Graham Torrance in district court yesterday afternoon.

It was the judgment of the court that Schmelz and his wife were guilty of maintaining a nuisance and were permanently restrained from ever conducting a nuisance in violation of the liquor laws of the state of Minnesota.

The order also restrained the use of the premises by anyone for the maintenance of a nuisance. Due to the fact that the state was unable to show knowledge on the part of the owner of the property, Lewis J. Van Fossen, of the existence of a nuisance, the property was not ordered padlocked.

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan conducted the case for the state and Robert L. Van Fossen appeared in behalf of the defendant, Lewis J. Van Fossen.

Fred Ledoux Sentenced

Fred Ledoux, of Oak Lawn, who signed a written confession of his guilt of the charge of taking a car owned by Frank Norton from a street in Brainerd, driving it to a dance in the country and leaving it on Brainerd streets, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced by Judge Torrance to St. Cloud reformatory for a term not to exceed two years.

Guilty of Manufacture

Joe Endehart, of Irondale township, arrested last June for having a still west of Ironton pleaded guilty to the charge of manufacturing liquor and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and pay a fine of $150. If the fine is not paid Endehart must serve 60 days additional.

Claims Being Heard

The hearing of claims in the Bay Lake Fruit Growers Association receivership was being conducted today. The firm of Wieland and Sullivan represent the claimants with Attorney Courtney, of Duluth, and Donald Ryan of the law firm of Ryan, Ryan, and Ryan, Brainerd, appearing on behalf of the receivers.

MEN IN MARATHON REDUCED TO FOUR

Passed 300 Hour Mark at Noon Today; Eleven Still in Race

NO. FIVE MAN OUT

Brainerd Couple Now Only Ones on Floor That Started Grind Together

With the 300 hour mark passed at noon today the marathon dancers at Lum Park started in wearily on their 303rd hour at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Another dancer fell by the wayside when the male partner of No. 5 was unable to respond to the whistle at the start of the 5 o'clock period this morning after dancing for 293 consecutive hours. He was forced out when his tired feet refused to carry him further.

The marathon fans are loud in their praise of couple No. 10, "Cully" Rodman and smiling Mrs. Gladys Houston of Branierd who are now the only couple on the floor that started the long grind together. They still look in fine shape and their smiling determination is going to go along way in helping them realize their dream of winning the marathon.

The men on the floor were reduced to four this morning with the failure of No. 5 to return to the floor. There are still seven girls in the race for the money. No. 4 Estelle Hildebrandt and Betty Smith No. 8 are teaming together after the loss of their partners earlier in the week. The girl of couple No. 5 is dancing by herself since the absence of her partner this morning. Up until this morning they were strong favorites for first place.

All four men now on the floor are assured of places in the prize money as the prizes are given to the last four men on the floor and the last four ladies on the floor. The girls still have some eliminating to do.

Marathon fans will enjoy a treat early Sunday morning when the mock marriage of one of the popular girl dancers to her trainer will be performed between the hours of 1 and 3 a. m. The two principals were unknown to each other before the marathon started.

The management enjoyed the patronage of a goodly number of spectators last evening. Special features are being presented from time to time to entertain the audiences.

Picture Writing Led to Modern Alphabet

Writing in its earliest development was ideography or picture writing. It comprised a series of pictures representing first a thing and secondly an idea. In the next stage of progress most of the lines of a recurring picture would be left out, until one stroke might at last come to represent perhaps a lion or the idea of hunting. The writing of some of the peoples of today is merely a continuation of such picture writing. Among other races the picture writing gradually developed into a combination of sounds to form the alphabet, and this type of writing has been set down in all sorts of ways. Each people developed its own alphabet. PRE-EXHIBITION HINTS ON "GLADS"

Exhibitors Urged to Take Particular Care of Blooms in Cutting and Preparing

FLOWER SHOW AUGUST 22, 23

Different Treatments Suggested in Bringing Out Best Blooms Before Showing

Care and preparation of flowers for exhibition are important factors with the exhibitor who desires to enter the flower in its very best condition.

With the Crow Wing County Garden and Flower society annual show scheduled for August 22, 23, at the court house, it would be well for the exhibitors to follow a few hints outlined as to the proper cutting and care of gladiolus before exhibiting.

Gladiolus may be held for exhibition in preparation as long as two weeks. To keep blooms for a period as long as this, pick the spikes early in the morning as the first blossom is opening, place them in water for a few hours then tie the spikes together and hang them upside down in a refrigerator room where the temperature is kept constantly at 35 degrees. These flowers will remain dormant for a couple of weeks. The day before the show take them down, cut the stems and put them in ice water in the refrigerator for a couple of hours, after which bring them into a room temperature of about 60 degrees for a few more hours. By this time the flowers will have opened up nicely and are ready for the show rooms. There are a few varieties which do not take kindly to this treatment but most kinds however respond readily.

In keeping blooms four days to one week before the show, cut early in the morning as the first blossom opens. Place in pail of water and keep in a refrigerator 35 to 40 degrees.

In keeping blooms two days before the show, keep in a sunny room with blossoms in direct sunlight. Always cut spikes as the first blossom opens early in the morning when there is plenty of water in the stems.

Blooms will keep much better when cut on a slanting angle and it is advisable to place the stems in water immediately after cutting.

By the above methods the individual who has only a few dozen blooms has as much opportunity to win prizes as the one with thousands.

During blooming season do not cultivate deeply. Just scratch surface to form a fine mulch. Do not neglect water at this time. This is very important to produce exhibition blooms. In cutting "Glads" for exhibition they should be cut as long as possible and still leave the requisite four leaves in the plant for its proper nourishment and development of the new bulb. Length of stem is one of the requirements for a good exhibition spike. Cut the stems 24 inches long, measuring from the bottom floret but be sure to leave four leaves. Have as many blooms open at the time of judging as possible. The judges cannot allow for unopened buds or faded blooms. They must judge on what there is at the time not how the flower may have looked yesterday or may look tomorrow.

DIRECTOR URGES CAUTION

Swimmers Should Not Enter Water in Overheated Condition, Earl Berg Advises

Earl R. Berg, water safety director, today advised all swimmers to be careful while swimming during the hot days as it is very possible to take a cramp since the body temperature is higher than the water temperature during hot days.

Six drownings occurred throughout the northwest yesterday and every effort is being put forth here to escape the season without one death by drowning.

Mr. Berg makes the suggestion that no swimmer should enter the water in an overheated condition.

HEAR RESTRAINT OF GATEWAY INN

Order Restrains Use of Premises for Maintenance of Nuisance

NOT ORDERED PADLOCKED

Fred Ledoux Sentenced to St. Cloud for Theft of Car

The hearing on the abatement proceedings for the closing of the Gateway Inn as against George F. Schmelz, Alma Schmelz and Lewis J. Van Fossen was held before Judge Graham Torrance in district court yesterday afternoon.

It was the judgment of the court that Schmelz and his wife were guilty of maintaining a nuisance and were permanently restrained from ever conducting a nuisance in violation of the liquor laws of the state of Minnesota.

The order also restrained the use of the premises by anyone for the maintenance of a nuisance. Due to the fact that the state was unable to show knowledge on the part of the owner of the property, Lewis J. Van Fossen, of the existence of a nuisance, the property was not ordered padlocked.

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan conducted the case for the state and Robert L. Van Fossen appeared in behalf of the defendant, Lewis J. Van Fossen.

Fred Ledoux Sentenced

Fred Ledoux, of Oak Lawn, who signed a written confession of his guilt of the charge of taking a car owned by Frank Norton from a street in Brainerd, driving it to a dance in the country and leaving it on Brainerd streets, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced by Judge Torrance to St. Cloud reformatory for a term not to exceed two years.

Guiltv of Manufacture

Joe Endehart, of Irondale township, arrested last June for having a still west of Ironton pleaded guilty to the charge of manufacturing liquor and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and pay a fine of $150. If the fine is not paid Endehart must serve 60 days additional.

Claims Being Heard

The hearing of claims in the Bay Lake Fruit Growers Association receivership was being conducted today. The firm of Wieland and Sullivan represent the claimants with Attorney Courtney, of Duluth, and Donald Ryan of the law firm of Ryan, Ryan, and Ryan, Brainerd, appearing on behalf of the receivers.

MEN IN MARATHON REDUCED TO FOUR

Passed 300 Hour Mark at Noon Today; Eleven Still in Race

NO. FIVE MAN OUT

Brainerd Couple Now Only Ones on Floor That Started Grind Together

With the 300 hour mark passed at noon today the marathon dancers at Lum Park started in wearily on their 303rd hour at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Another dancer fell by the wayside when the male partner of No. 5 was unable to respond to the whistle at the start of the 5 o'clock period this morning after dancing for 293 consecutive hours. He was forced out when his tired feet refused to carry him further.

The marathon fans are loud in their praise of couple No. 10, "Cully" Rodman and smiling Mrs. Gladys Houston of Branierd who are now the only couple on the floor that started the long grind together. They still look in fine shape and their smiling determination is going to go along way in helping them realize their dream of winning the marathon.

The men on the floor were reduced to four this morning with the failure of No. 5 to return to the floor. There are still seven girls in the race for the money. No. 4 Estelle Hildebrandt and Betty Smith No. 8 are teaming together after the loss of their partners earlier in the week. The girl of couple No. 5 is dancing by herself since the absence of her partner this morning. Up until this morning they were strong favorites for first place.

All four men now on the floor are assured of places in the prize money as the prizes are given to the last four men on the floor and the last four ladies on the floor. The girls still have some eliminating to do.

Marathon fans will enjoy a treat early Sunday morning when the mock marriage of one of the popular girl dancers to her trainer will be performed between the hours of 1 and 3 a. m. The two principals were unknown to each other before the marathon started.

The management enjoyed the patronage of a goodly number of spectators last evening. Special features are being presented from time to time to entertain the audiences.

Picture Writing Led to Modern Alphabet

Writing in its earliest development was ideography or picture writing. It comprised a series of pictures representing first a thing and secondly an idea. In the next stage of progress most of the lines of a recurring picture would be left out, until one stroke might at last come to represent perhaps a lion or the idea of hunting. The writing of some of the peoples of today is merely a continuation of such picture writing. Among other races the picture writing gradually developed into a combination of sounds to form the alphabet, and this type of writing has been set down in all sorts of ways. Each people developed its own alphabet. Eastern people for the most part writing, as we would say, backwards, i. e., from right to left; or downward; while our own branch of the human race which has developed the "cursive" style of writing in which each letter can be joined to the next without lifting the pen, find writing from left to right the most convenient method.

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl working in New York as a stenographer, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Aleda is living with Marise de Rense and the latter's young, sophisticated sister, Goldie. Goldie, jealous of Aleda, tricks her into attending a scandalous party and then notifies Chester. Gary, disillusioned, avoids Aleda. Goldie, visiting Aleda's office, meets Gary Chester and again maliciously poisons his mind with falsehoods about Aleda.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIV.

ALEDA walked up Wall Street with misted eyes. Intolerable disappointment nagged at her.

Up to the last minute, till the arrival of Goldie—an unwelcome visitor—she had hoped, even against her better judgment, that Gary Chester would telephone to her.

That curtly worded note, with the return of the case!

Even though it had wounded her, she thought: "He didn't mean it! He was indignant—shocked—perhaps even jealous"—(and wasn't jealousy a sign of love?—she tried to buoy herself with that). "He'll come out of his mood—his feeling for me is too strong to let a little thing come between us—before the day's over he'll telephone!"

He had not done so. He had apparently wished to call off their evening together. Unconscious that she had missed Gary by only a matter of minutes, and that Goldie was, at this very instant, trying to poison the young man's mind against her, Aleda—with blurred eyes and a real heartache—walked up Wall Street.

The soft air of June caressed her pretty features. There would be a moon again tonight—a wisp of a moon—the same slim crescent that had smiled so sympathetically on the pair of them only last evening!

Was it so short a while ago? It seemed like centuries!

This love! She knew (no use denying it!) how much, how achingly, he "counted" in her life——

"To love is to suffer," says the old French proverb. And now, for the first time in her brief span of years, Aleda was learning the meaning of this pain.

But she held her chin up. In the straight little linen frock that showed the sweet curves of her slim body, she looked like a young Diana, gallantly facing life.

She climbed into a street car at the top of Wall Street. It had no doors or windows, and was open to the evening air. Perched on its hard bench she rode up Broadway, seeking diversion from her disappointment in watching the crowds, the myriad happenings of the town.

Like a grain of sand in the desert, wasn't she? she asked of herself. One of a myriad Cinderellas? And each one waiting in her heart for her rightful mate?

And she had thought that she—Aleda Ray—new to this surging life, had found him?

Well . . . even if she had been mistaken . . . hide the heartache . . . face the world gallant and gay!

The Greek philosophers—(up in the Adirondacks, Aleda had read considerably, probing thirstily into the long ago) had that same idea. Don't permit anything to hurt you! Get the laugh on life, with the chin held up!

"I had a sort of a date myself, tonight," said Goldie de Rense coyly, her green eyes fixed on Gary Chester, with a deliberate invitation, "but I have a hunch that my date isn't going to materialize!"

Which was correct—in that Goldie's engagement was purely of her own imagining!

They were in William B. Lingard's outer office, and Gary had missed Aleda by only a few minutes.

The young man favored Goldie with a disapproving—not to say, distasteful—glance.

It was not what she had hoped for, with her coquettish manner, and her "come hither-ish" advance.

She'd missed her cues, apparently. She would try another tack.

"You remember our chats at the Harvest Moon? That's the little night-club where I dance. Your friend the countess said something—it was ever so sweet of her!—about getting me a chance on the stage."

"Did she, indeed? She says many things, and then forgets about them—" The young man was annoyingly distrait.

Goldie kept back her temper. One had to control oneself, in dealing with a certain type of male.

"I hate to repeat compliments, but she told me I had real talent—she called it 'dramatic art'."

"She was quite right. Both in the adjective and the noun—and taken separately." There was a flicker in his eyes, as though the young man were faintly, sarcastically, amused at her.

She did not relish that. She slid down from her perch on Aleda's desk, and with an edge to her voice, said:

"Since you're not appreciating my company, why don't you go in the other room?" She cocked her head towards Lingard's private sanctum.

"I think his visitor's still there. I shan't stay." Gary coolly took his hat, gave a quick nod to her, and with a: "If he comes out, please tell him I couldn't wait"—was gone!

Goldie was wrathful. But it was a consoling thought to know that she had at least thrown a monkey-wrench into Aleda's chances with this "high hat" youth!

She sat ruminating for a few moments. Then, as she was about to depart, the glass door marked "Private" opened, and a thick-set, strongly featured man of middle-age, appeared in the aperture.

This must be the rich William B. Lingard. Aleda's boss——

She was about to deliver Gary's message—her lips opened—then fell into a gape——

For the man, after his first glance at her, was standing there rigid and transfixed, his eyes fastened on her in a prolonged and almost mesmerized stare!

"Ye—es? Wha—what's the matter?" stammered Goldie, put about.

He came toward her, then, "Just as though I were a python, he a rabbit, and I'd hypnotized him!" she afterward exclaimed.

He said—his eyes still fastened on her—in a queer, excited mumble:

"You? After all this time? Marise? It IS Marise!"

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl working in New York as a stenographer, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Aleda is living with Marise de Rense and the latter's young, sophisticated sister, Goldie. Goldie, jealous of Aleda, tricks her into attending a scandalous party and then notifies Chester. Gary, disillusioned, avoids Aleda. Goldie, visiting Aleda's office, meets Gary Chester and again maliciously poisons his mind with falsehoods about Aleda.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIV.

ALEDA walked up Wall Street with misted eyes. Intolerable disappointment nagged at her.

Up to the last minute, till the arrival of Goldie—an unwelcome visitor—she had hoped, even against her better judgment, that Gary Chester would telephone to her.

That curtly worded note, with the return of the case!

Even though it had wounded her, she thought: "He didn't mean it! He was indignant—shocked—perhaps even jealous"—(and wasn't jealousy a sign of love?—she tried to buoy herself with that). "He'll come out of his mood—his feeling for me is too strong to let a little thing come between us—before the day's over he'll telephone!"

He had not done so. He had apparently wished to call off their evening together. Unconscious that she had missed Gary by only a matter of minutes, and that Goldie was, at this very instant, trying to poison the young man's mind against her, Aleda—with blurred eyes and a real heartache—walked up Wall Street.

The soft air of June caressed her pretty features. There would be a moon again tonight—a wisp of a moon—the same slim crescent that had smiled so sympathetically on the pair of them only last evening!

Was it so short a while ago? It seemed like centuries!

This love! She knew (no use denying it!) how much, how achingly, he "counted" in her life—

"To love is to suffer," says the old French proverb. And now, for the first time in her brief span of years, Aleda was learning the meaning of this pain.

But she held her chin up. In the straight little linen frock that showed the sweet curves of her slim body, she looked like a young Diana, gallantly facing life.

She climbed into a street car at the top of Wall Street. It had no doors or windows, and was open to the evening air. Perched on its hard bench she rode up Broadway, seeking diversion from her disappointment in watching the crowds, the myriad happenings of the town.

Like a grain of sand in the desert, wasn't she? she asked of herself. One of a myriad Cinderellas? And each one waiting in her heart for her rightful mate?

And she had thought that she—Aleda Ray—new to this surging life, had found him?

Well . . . even if she had been mistaken . . . hide the heartache . . . face the world gallant and gay!

The Greek philosophers—(up in the Adirondacks, Aleda had read considerably, probing thirstily into the long ago) had that same idea. Don't permit anything to hurt you! Get the laugh on life, with the chin held up!

"I had a sort of a date myself, tonight," said Goldie de Rense coyly, her green eyes fixed on Gary Chester, with a deliberate invitation. "but I have a hunch that my date isn't going to materialize!"

Which was correct—in that Goldie's engagement was purely of her own imagining!

They were in William B. Lingard's outer office, and Gary had missed Aleda by only a few minutes.

The young man favored Goldie with a disapproving—not to say, distasteful—glance.

It was not what she had hoped for, with her coquettish manner, and her "come hither-ish" advance.

She'd missed her cues, apparently. She would try another tack.

"You remember our chats at the Harvest Moon? That's the little night-club where I dance. Your friend the countess said something—it was ever so sweet of her!—about getting me a chance on the stage."

"Did she, indeed? She says many things, and then forgets about them—" The young man was annoyingly distrait.

Goldie kept back her temper. One had to control oneself, in dealing with a certain type of male.

"I hate to repeat compliments, but she told me I had real talent—she called it 'dramatic art'."

"She was quite right. Both in the adjective and the noun—and taken separately." There was a flicker in his eyes, as though the young man were faintly, sarcastically, amused at her.

She did not relish that. She slid down from her perch on Aleda's desk, and with an edge to her voice, said:

"Since you're not appreciating my company, why don't you go in the other room?" She cocked her head towards Lingard's private sanctum.

"I think his visitor's still there. I shan't stay." Gary coolly took his hat, gave a quick nod to her, and with a: "If he comes out, please tell him I couldn't wait"—was gone!

Goldie was wrathful. But it was a consoling thought to know that she had at least thrown a monkey-wrench into Aleda's chances with this "high hat" youth!

She sat ruminating for a few moments. Then, as she was about to depart, the glass door marked "Private" opened, and a thick-set, strongly featured man of middle-age, appeared in the aperture.

This must be the rich William B. Lingard. Aleda's boss——

She was about to deliver Gary's message—her lips opened—then fell into a gape——

For the man, after his first glance at her, was standing there rigid and transfixed, his eyes fastened on her in a prolonged and almost mesmerized stare!

"Ye—es? Wha—what's the matter?" stammered Goldie, put about.

He came toward her, then, "Just as though I were a python, he a rabbit, and I'd hypnotized him!" she afterward exclaimed.

He said—his eyes still fastened on her—in a queer, excited mumble:

"You? After all this time? Marise? It IS Marise!"
